A new privacy law, the California Consumer Privacy Act ("CCPA"), that provides California consumers certain rights regarding their personal information, became effective on January 1, 2020. The CCPA covers California state resident data and also expands the responsibility over private data to third parties collecting and handling the data. In the past month, RIWI has used its technical safeguards that meet the requirements of the CCPA. RIWI's computational infrastructure currently enables the Company to deploy different approaches to ensure compliance with the CCPA.
